Key Takeaways

Huijue is a Chinese optical cable and network equipment brand, not a Portuguese brand, though its products are exported to Europe, including Portugal. Brand Overview Huijue Network, founded in 2002, is a high-tech Chinese company specializing in fiber optic components, intelligent network communication equipment, and system integration. The company exports its products globally, including to European countries, which means Huijue optical cables may be available in Portugal through distributors or importers.

Its product range includes fiber optic cables, structured cabling systems, and related network hardware. Presence in Portugal While Huijue exports to Europe, there is no evidence of a Portuguese headquarters or manufacturing facility. In Portugal, the fiber optic market is served by local companies such as FastFiber, Altice Labs, G9Telecom, CABLOTEC, Fibersail, and Vipa Telecom, which manufacture or distribute fiber optic systems and structured cabling.

These companies focus on FTTH networks, optical distribution networks, and other telecommunications infrastructure.

Key Takeaways

Huijue is Chinese, not Portuguese. Its products are exported to Portugal, so they may be available through local distributors. For sourcing fiber optic cables in Portugal, local manufacturers like Barpa, CABLOTEC, and FastFiber are prominent options.

Portuguese companies often provide structured cabling, racks, and fiber optic systems, which may complement or compete with imported Huijue products. In summary, if you are looking for Huijue optical cables in Portugal, you would be dealing with imported products, while local Portuguese brands offer alternative fiber optic solutions with domestic support and distribution.
